Learning outcomes: Graduates of the course European Legal Methodology will acquire methodological and analytical skills necessary for working with European Union law. Students will understand the specific features of the autonomous interpretation of EU law and will be able to apply the main interpretative methods used in the case law of the Court of Justice of the European Union, while taking into account the multilingual nature of the EU legal order and the autonomous meaning of certain legal concepts. Students will gain the ability to analyse the process of judicial concretisation and development of law through case law, including the filling of gaps in the law through analogy and general principles of law, as well as to identify the limits of judicial interpretation. Within the framework of application mechanisms, students will acquire knowledge of the principles of interpretation of national law in conformity with EU law, understand the issues related to the transposition of directives, including the phenomenon of so-called gold-plating, and become familiar with the advance effects of directives during the transposition period. Graduates of the course will also be able to perceive EU law as a coherent system, identify its connections with economic reasoning in the field of the internal market, and understand the temporal effects of the case law of the Court of Justice of the European Union.
